What's The Best Way to Reach Farmers in the Delta?

Farmers are busy guys... Up before dawn to head out to the farm... Driving from place to place throughout the day... Returning home after dark for a quick dinner, then off to bed before starting all over again the next day. There's not much time for watching TV... Even less time for reading the newspaper or other publications... And they're certainly not paying attention to billboards. But they're listening to the Radio in their trucks and in the cabs of their tractors. In most cases, the local country station or the talk station.

Want to reach farmers in the Delta? There's no better choice than Radio. And only Delta Radio Network offers four great options for reaching farmers - WKXY (Mainstream Country in Cleveland); WMYQ (Mainstream Country in Greenwood); WDTL (Classic Country in Greenville-Indianola-Cleveland); and WNIX (News-Talk, featuring Rush Limbaugh, in Greenville).

Don't waste your ad dollars on passive media that isn't effective at reaching farmers. Break those old habits and call Delta Radio Network at 662-94-8865 for details on how you can target your advertising to busy, working farmers throughout the Delta. Or, visit us online at www.deltaradio.net.
